From the Vice Chair Jordan Coté, CPP

Hello Arizona Security Professionals,

In our profession we should expect to be called upon when least expected. That truth was validated for me this month when our newly-elected Chapter Chair, Joel Otting, CPP, had an unexpected family emergency which took him out of state for awhile. I'm sure that by the time you read this he will have returned, but please keep Joel and his family in your thoughts and prayers.

So while I try to keep our ship on course, there are many exciting things happening within our Chapter. Those who attended January's luncheon heard Special Agent William Lace of the FBI present on Economic Espionage and Counterintelligence Threats. In addition, he showed a short movie based on a real case of economic espionage which showcased how vulnerable any company can become.

February's luncheon will be on Wednesday, February 18th, at the Sheraton Crescent Hotel. Our speaker will be Michael Brady, MA, CPP, Director of Campus Safety and Security at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. He will be speaking on "Higher Ed Security, High Desert Style." Please make your reservation with Jeanne Croft, Accommodations Chair. Details are later in this newsletter.

Start planning now to attend our annual Southwest Security Conference. While the exact date in June has yet to be set, our "Dream Team" of committee members, led by Don Hesselbrock, CPP, will certainly put together an fantastic conference.

Congratulations to Ryan Eldridge of Eagle Force Security, for winning an Allan J. Cross Award from ASIS International. He gets to attend a free online ASIS certification training class of his choice.

We have two open positions on our board of directors remaining – Programs Chair and Education Chair. Plus all of our other committees could always use extra help. Remember that volunteerism is the lifeblood of our Chapter and serving on our board is a great way to get involved, meet new friends, and gain those all-important certification points. Contact either Joel or myself if interested.

Finally, if you have not renewed your Chapter membership for 2015, please do so now. The renewal form and payment methods are included in this newsletter and our website.

I want to take a final moment and send a job-well-done to all those who helped in keeping our city safe and secure during the Super Bowl and all of its related events. It was a monumental task and you did our city and our profession proud.

Have a happy and safe February. See you at the luncheon on the 18th.

"In our profession we should expect to be called upon when least expected."

Luncheon Reservation Policy

Due to the policies of our new venue you will need to cancel your meeting reservations by 9:00 AM on the Monday preceding all events, or be billed for the event.

Making Connections Pat MacArthur, Young Professionals Liaison

As security managers and professionals we have heard about the importance of building and leading successful teams. We attend management training; we read articles and books and attend seminars on variety of subjects in order to be more successful at managing our people. But recently I was challenged on the question; do I make connections with my people?

I attended a webinar put on by the Association for Talent Development and the speaker's talking point was "Making Managers Leaders". My assumption from the title was to review employee relations strategies or something of that nature. But I was mistaken. His point was that employees follow managers due to their authority whereas leaders inspire their people to follow them by making connections with their people.

This got me thinking, am I making a connection today with those that work for me but also those who work with me? Am I taking the time out of my schedule to make a connection in someone else's life? Which led to the question, how do I get be better about making connections?

Why I Belong to the Phoenix Chapter of ASIS Vince Lyon, Treasurer

I believe that spending time in any career field can make a person stagnant. Many years ago you would have heard me state that my experience and education provided me with all the knowledge and skills I require to be successful. I didn't give much thought to meeting new people, improving my skills or continuing my education; let alone work towards a certification in Security. Then I was down-sized from the Arizona Republic at a time when readership and advertisement was dropping in newspapers across the country. Although I knew that I was the 'best candidate' for any security position, I spent several (long) months looking for a new job.

Once hired, my new manager took me to one of the monthly luncheon's held by the Phoenix Chapter of ASIS. After that, I continued to attend the meetings, although I wasn't hooked, initially. Eventually I came to discover that there are numerous benefits offered by the Chapter. First, I discovered many of the membership share a common goal. I learned (and learn) a great deal from the monthly speakers (even had the opportunity to tour Chase Field). The Chapter goes to great lengths to offer opportunities for education. For example, each month the Chapter sponsor's a webinar presented by ASIS International. These webinars, usually 90-minutes in length, are free to the Chapter membership. The Chapter offers excellent review courses for the CPP and PSP examinations. I've attended both courses, and was successful in passing the CPP and PSP exam; the first time!

At the luncheon I feel comfortable speaking with someone, or many someone's, regarding an issue, a project, or new security product. Their collective knowledge and experience is invaluable; not only for

Pat MacArthur

We live in a society where we have Facebook, LinkedIn, email, smart phones and all other types of platforms to connect with people, but do we feel more connected? This led me to believe that we need to try our best to connect with people on a personal level which means talking to them, listening to them and spending time to mentor and coach them in order to make those connections. Many of us can think back to a person who took time out of their schedule to “show us the ropes” and we still to this day look back on them with fondness and admiration. That person gave up small amounts of time to make a big impact on our lives now. So, what impact do we want to make in the future of the people around us?

With our world of budgets, business objectives and the hustle and bustle of our days, we need to look at each conversation and each interaction as a chance to connect with our people or others in our industry to make an impact in their future. We need to make connections not simply for business objectives, but to grow life-long partnerships that will make that impact on the future of our industry. If you would like to make a connection either as a mentor or as someone who would like to be mentored, please contact me at pat.macarthur@securitasinc.com or by cell phone at (480)284-3682.

Legislation Update

Nick Ciliento, Legislation Chair

ASIS continued to follow the developments of security-related legislation in the House and Senate during the fourth quarter of 2014.

ASIS staff worked through most of 2014 to support the passage of cyber-security information-sharing legislation. In December, ASIS signed onto an industry letter and made calls and visits to Congressional staff in support of a bill co-authored by Senators Dianne Feinstein (D-CA) and Saxby Chambliss (R-GA). The Cyber-security Information Sharing Act (S. 2588) was the Senate companion to the Cyber Intelligence Sharing & Protection Act (CISPA) passed by the House in 2013. By December 2014, CISA was seen as the best chance for last-minute passage of an information-sharing bill before Congress adjourned.

The goal of CISA was to help businesses achieve timely and actionable situational awareness to improve detection, mitigation and response capabilities against cyber threats. The bill provided a complement to the NIST framework by strengthening the resilience of private sector information networks and by offering targeted protections businesses have been seeking from government.

CISA passed the Senate Intelligence Committee in July 2014 with broad support from both Democrats and Republicans, and represented a workable compromise among many stakeholders. Ultimately, Congress failed to act on this bill and no information-sharing legislation was passed into law by the end of the 113th Congress.

ASIS will work with the new 114th Congress to regenerate momentum on CISA, and will continue to monitor other key issues as they are introduced. As always, ASIS will provide feedback and support on these issues as needed.

We have a committee in place for the Southwest Security Conference! A big thank you to Meghan Uhl, Debbie Anderson, Tasha Uhl, Dave Toon, Ryan Eldridge, and Don Hesselbrock (who stepped up to be the Chair)! We will be hearing more from them soon. The committee will still accept additional members who would like to help out. Contact Don if you would like to help – or know someone who would.

Securing the Fan Experience

by Nancy Serot and Thomas K. Zink

In October 2005, as the final seconds ticked off the clock and Oklahoma University (OU) sealed its 43 to 21 victory against Kansas State, an announcement washed over the 84,000 fans gathered in the football stadium: a bomb had gone off outside the stadium and attendees could not leave.

When fans finally exited the venue 30 minutes later, OU student Joel Henry Hinrichs III was dead, killed when an explosive device attached to his body detonated near Oklahoma Memorial Stadium. After an FBI investigation, authorities determined that Hinrichs had no intention of harming others and his death was ruled a suicide.

The incident at OU is just one in a long line of threats to sports venues across the United States and the world, stretching from the Munich Summer Olympics in 1972 to the Boston Marathon bombing....

Phoenix aims to become "Cyber Security Valley"

Welcome to "Cyber Security Valley," the emerging label for the Phoenix area, thanks to a concerted effort by successful and well-funded tech security leaders and government agencies.

Metro Phoenix will be joining the ranks of a few other well-known destinations such as Silicon Valley-San Jose, Music City-Nashville and Madison Avenue-New York. Interestingly, Arizona has been recognized as one of the top 10 states for ID-theft victims by the Federal Trade Commission over the last decade.

Recently, I attended a charity event with a famously infamous cybersecurity keynote speaker and hosted by Ori Eisen, online fraud and security expert and founder of Scottsdale based 41st Parameter. Eisen is one of the business leaders working toward Cyber Security Valley, this after selling 41st Parameter to Experian. Eisen's charity, "Ball to ALL," has set out to help work toward world peace by giving Third World kids soccer balls (99 percent have never seen a real soccer ball!) inscribed with a message of peace.

The charity keynote speaker was Frank Abagnale Jr., whose real-life story as a con artist posing as an airline pilot, doctor and lawyer while committing check fraud was made into the critically acclaimed movie "Catch Me If You Can." Abagnale, who became an FBI consultant nearly four decades ago — after committing crimes and spending time in prison — is recognized as one of the most respected authorities in the world on the subjects of forgery, embezzlement and secure documents.

Abagnale talked about the endless number of hacking and data-breach incidents and said the "insider threat" was a significant contributor to these events. He advised those in attendance to use credit cards vs. debit cards to make purchases to reduce the potential of ID theft losses.

Now, back to Cyber Security Valley — it was created by three business leaders from Greater Phoenix to leverage higher education and local talent, increase access to capital and ensure entrepreneurs have the support and technical assistance to thrive. Cyber Security Valley was founded by Eisen, Richard Davis of research firm Artis International and Vincent Liu of Bishop Fox in Phoenix (a leading IT security-consulting firm specializing in enterprise security).

Phoenix is the growing center for cybersolutions for the national and international epidemic of cyberwarfare, intellectual property theft, identity theft and data breach...

6 for 60!

Take the challenge - Reach out and recruit 6 new members in 2015.

Campaign runs January 20-September 15, 2015.

Dear ASIS Member:

Today marks the official launch of 6 for 60! This is a special 60th anniversary membership recruitment drive for members in the western U.S. chapters of ASIS. With the Annual Seminar and Exhibits coming to Anaheim this September, it is an opportune time for you to reach out and invite peers to engage in our professional community.

My goal for this regional campaign is to collectively recruit 2,500 new members by 15 September. Are you up to the challenge?

Members present the most compelling recruitment proposition, because you have personally experienced the benefits and value of membership in ASIS. Your story is more powerful than any advertisement or mailing that our marketing team could do.

To begin, take a few moments to recall some of the specific instances when you reached out to:

- Consult with an ASIS member peer
- Utilize an ASIS reference guide or standard
- Sought information or best practices in a research study
- Or, other...

These very tangible, personal experiences convey the scope, strength, and power of the ASIS network and resources, which we know to be invaluable.

Challenge start date: 20 January

Challenge end date: 15 September

Eligibility:

- This is open to any member within the western U.S. chapters.

- A member must recruit a minimum of 6 new members to be eligible for prizes.

Prizes:

Prizes will be awarded to those in the region who recruit the most number of new members during the challenge period. (Note: Participants will also be eligible for both the quarterly and annual Member-Get-a-Member rewards program as well.)

- First Prize: One full registration to ASIS 2015 and two additional tickets to the President's Reception.
- Second Prize: A $500 coupon for the ASIS Store.
- Third Prize: A $250 coupon to the ASIS Store.

Winners will be announced prior to ASIS 2015.

REMEMBER to have those you recruit list your name on their application so that you receive appropriate credit!

Best of luck! I hope to see you at the top of the leaderboard in the coming months.

Lead on!
